

DEATH HAPPENS EVERYWHERE: ESSENTIAL SKILLS FOR THE HEALTHCARE TEAM

Join us in a full-day deep-dive for healthcare teams who are done guessing, done tiptoeing, and ready to handle death and dying with clarity, skill, and heart.

You will:

- Finally understand palliative care and hospice — minus the myths and mixed messages.
- Recognize and know what to expect as the body goes through the dying process, so nothing catches you off guard.
- Get language you can actually use when conversations get tough.
- Build communication muscle by practicing with scenarios that sound suspiciously like your real life.
- Understand your grief so it doesn't hijack your compassion.
- Walk out more grounded, more confident, and more connected to your "why."

■ Instructor: Amy Hensley, MSN, RN

Former graphic designer turned nurse and educator, Amy blends creativity, compassion, and clarity to help people get one notch more comfortable with the uncomfortable. With experience spanning the hospital floor, hospice, classroom, and living rooms, she brings honesty, consistency, and deep care to every conversation—especially the hard ones. Amy hopes to empower others to speak up, plan ahead, and find peace in the process.

Delivered in person and group-based.

This workshop is brought to you by Southeast Community College through a partnership with Amy Hensley, LLC. Created by Amy Hensley and content experts. Facilitated by Amy Hensley, MSN, RN.

Nurses receive 7.0 contact hours. This workshop is also impactful for Social Workers, Pastoral, and Aides.
